Johnson was born in 1886 in Bullock County, Alabama. He grew up on a farm and worked as a sharecropper for most of his life. He began taking photographs in the early 1900s, using a Kodak Brownie camera. He quickly developed a talent for capturing the beauty and dignity of the people and places around him.

Johnson's photographs are often simple and straightforward, but they are also deeply moving. They capture the everyday lives of ordinary people, but they also reveal the resilience and spirit of the human soul. Johnson's photographs have been exhibited in museums and galleries around the world, and they have been published in numerous books and magazines.

The Photographs of Johnnie Johnson is a beautiful and important book that offers a unique glimpse into the American South in the early 20th century. Johnson's photographs are a testament to the power of human creativity and the beauty of the human spirit.
